```
»   options:
»     max-size: 20m
»     max-file: 5

  # Use a different ssh user than root
  # ssh:
  #   user: app

  # Use accessory services (secrets come from .kamal/secrets).
  # accessories:
  #   db:
  #     image: mysql:8.0
  #     host: 192.168.0.2
  #     # Change to 3306 to expose port to the world instead of just
  #     # local network.
  #     port: "127.0.0.1:3306:3306"
  #     env:
  #       clear:
  #         MYSQL_ROOT_HOST: '%'
  #       secret:
  #         - MYSQL_ROOT_PASSWORD
  #     files:
  #       - config/mysql/production.cnf:/etc/mysql/my.cnf
  #       - db/production.sql:/docker-entrypoint-initdb.d/setup.sql
  #     directories:
  #       - data:/var/lib/mysql
  #   redis:
  #     image: redis:7.0
  #     host: 192.168.0.2
  #     port: 6379
  #     directories:
  #       - data:/data
```

Kamal provides full documentation on this file.[116] Here are the fields you'll be updating:

- service and image are completely up to you. service is the container name prefix, and image is where the containers will be pushed.
- You put the ip address of your host in this file twice, once as the deployment target and once as your builder.