a callback that generated a log message when an order was created. That functionality isn't really part of the basic `Order` class—we put it there because that's where the callback executed.

When used in moderation, such an approach doesn't lead to significant problems. If, however, you find yourself repeating code, consider using concerns[155] instead.