Both primary keys and foreign keys play a vital role in database operations and merit additional discussion.