ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Anirudhya Mitra is a journalist-turned-filmmaker. During his successful stint of news reporting at the Times of India and the India Today magazine (1982–93), Mitra broke several stories, including the Rajiv Gandhi assassination; the Bofors gun deal; the drug wars in India, Pakistan and Afghanistan; the money laundering operation by the BCCI bank that led to its worldwide closure; corruption in the judiciary; the life and times of Indian model-turned-spy Pamella Bordes; and Godman Chandraswami, among others. He moved to writing and creating television series with UTV in Mumbai in 1994. Notable among his works are Sea Hawks on Doordarshan Metro and Star TV and Govinda-starrer Jeeto Chappar Phaad Ke on Sony TV. He also wrote and produced movies in South East Asia, of which Under the Protection of Ka'bah competed at the Oscars in 2012. The biopic on Indonesian President B.J. Habibie, Habibie & Ainun, also became a blockbuster. The Hindi film Tahaan, of which Mitra was a co-writer, won major awards at festivals, including the London Independent Film Festival and the International Istanbul Film Festival.
