Demonetization Report Card

The care of human life and happiness, and not their destruction, is the first and only object of good government.

– Thomas Jefferson

'Tughlaqi firmaan' is how many critics described demonetization, comparing it to the ill-conceived actions of a former Sultan of Delhi, Muhammad bin Tughlaq.

Tughlaq was the Sultan of Delhi during 1325–1351, whose reign was chronicled by Ibn Battuta, the famous Moroccan traveller and jurist, and a guest at his court. Battuta's memoirs recount that 'Tughlaq was hasty in nature, with most of his experiments failing due to lack of preparation. He depended on his own judgment and rarely took advice from others.'
