25. I had an unforgettable experience with respect to the old marks. I was the Chief Operating Officer of ABN AMRO Bank in India when the Euro was introduced. One day, I was approached by a customer with the request to unlock a locker in our Bada Bazaar branch in Kolkata. The locker had been sealed for many years and was registered in the name of his late grandfather. After due diligence and securing the necessary court approvals, the locker was opened. Old Weimar currency with a face value of millions of marks tumbled out! The customer was triumphant – his grandfather had told him there was a fortune in the locker, and he wished to claim its full value in Euros! It took a long while to explain to him that other than their historical value, these pieces of paper were worthless.
