Thanks are also due to news agencies PTI and IANS and TV channels TV Today, CNN IBN, ABP News and Zee News.

My special thanks to Salil Tripathi and Paranjoy Guha Thakurta for their valuable inputs.

I have had to draw from both the RBI archives and numerous foreign publications and authors. Articles and interviews quoted have been gratefully acknowledged.

The commentary on demonetization was made much richer by the expert comments of several distinguished bankers and economists. I have taken the liberty of quoting, with respect and gratitude, the words of the former Prime Minister Dr Manmohan Singh, Nobel laureate Dr Amartya Sen, Dr Jagdish Bhagwati, Dr Arvind Virmani, Dr Bibek Debroy, Dr Kaushik Basu, Amit Verma, Devangshu Datta, Ajay Shah, Dr Pronab Sen, Prof. Arun Kumar, Prof. Pulapre Balakrishnan, Captain Raghu Raman, Dr Ajit Mozoomdar, Neelkanth Mishra, and Prof. Himanshu.

Two experts to whom I owe special thanks are James Wilson and Vivek Kaul, whose detailed and insightful articles and blogs through the course of the demonetization period and its aftermath, helped to make sense of all the contradictory data that was appearing.

The demonetization had many tragic and unfortunate outcomes. The office of the Chief Minister of West Bengal had documented the deaths attributed to this move. My sincere thanks to Derek O'Brien, Member of Parliament and Chief Spokesperson of the All India Trinamool Congress, for sharing the list of the 120 demonetization deaths.

Despite the havoc wreaked by demonetization, India never lost its sense of humour. They say a picture speaks a thousand words. Cartoons by India's talented cartoonists managed to evoke a smile despite all the chaos. My deep and sincere thanks to the many cartoonists who inspired me, especially Satish Acharya.

My learnings and perspectives have been shaped by the experiences in my banking career and my two Lok Sabha campaigns. For these, I
