Chapter Sixty-One

The Fall of the Khilji

Between 1303 and 1320, the Muslim sultanate of Delhi spreads across the north, but the Khilji dynasty loses its hold on the throne

UNDER ‘ALA’-UD-DIN’S heavy hand, the sultanate of Delhi was spreading, in a series of Muslim assaults aimed at obliterating the Hindu holdouts of India. The Rajput kingdoms—the Hindu warrior clans, the “sons of kings”—were falling, one by one.
