

*Richard II and Henry IV were cousins, but because Henry's father John of Gaunt had been a younger son of the king, Henry IV was considered a member of a different family. The House of Lancaster was a "cadet branch" of the Plantagenets (a branch made up of the descendants of the younger sons of a monarch or patriarch).