agency is asked to do work, this is premature load bearing and it generates an organizational collapse.

When reforms have to be brought to existing agencies, the incumbent officials resent reductions in their arbitrary power. They argue that if a policeman has to go to a judge and get a warrant before entering a home, we will fail to catch criminals. But it is only in a police state that a policeman's job is easy.