Contents

Preface

Part I: Foundations

1. The purpose of government
2. The limited toolkit of intervention
3. A long history of failure

Part II: Diagnosing the Indian experience

4. Anatomy of our policy failure
5. Why do things go wrong?

Part III: The science

6. People respond to incentives
7. Going with the grain of the price system
8. More competition, always
9. Trace out the general equilibrium effects
10. Go to the root cause, use the smallest possible force
11. Redistribution is fraught with trouble
12. Private solutions for market failure
13. Bring cold calculations into the policy process
14. Ask the right question
15. Taking decentralization seriously

Part IV: The art

16. Evolutionary change for society, revolutionary change for government
17. Cross the river by feeling the stones
18. Adapting from the international experience?
19. Test match, not IPL
20. What is hard and what is easy