1. He/she should be a citizen of India.
2. He/she should have completed 35 years of age.
3. He/she should be qualified for election as a member of the Lok Sabha.
4. He/she should not hold any office of profit under the Union government or any state government or any local authority or any other public authority. A sitting President or Vice-President of the Union, the Governor of any state and a minister of the Union or any state is not deemed to hold any office of profit and hence qualified as a presidential candidate.

Further, the nomination of a candidate for election to the office of President must be subscribed by at least 50 electors as proposers and 50 electors as seconders. Every candidate has to make a security deposit of ₹15,000 in the Reserve Bank of India. The security deposit is liable to be forfeited in case the candidate fails to secure one-sixth of the votes polled. Before 1997, number of proposers and seconders was ten each and the amount of security deposit was ₹2,500. In 1997, they were increased to discourage the non-serious candidates[4].

 Oath or Affirmation by the President

Before entering upon his/her office, the President has to make and subscribe to an oath or affirmation. In his/her oath, the President swears:

1. to faithfully execute the office;
2. to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution and the law; and
3. to devote himself to the service and well-being of the people of India.

The oath of office to the President is administered by the Chief Justice of India and in his/her absence, the seniormost judge of the Supreme Court available.

Any other person acting as President or discharging the functions of the President also undertakes the similar oath or affirmation.

 Conditions of President's Office

The Constitution lays down the following conditions of the President's office:

1. He/she should not be a member of either House of Parliament or a House of the state legislature. If any such person is elected as President, he/she is deemed to have vacated his/her seat in that House on the date on which he/she enters upon his/her office as President.
2. He/she should not hold any other office of profit.
3. He/she is entitled, without payment of rent, to the use of his/her official residence (the Rastrapathi Bhavan).
4. He/she is entitled to such emoluments, allowances and privileges as may be determined by Parliament.
