vacuum. The resignation or death of any other minister, on the other hand, merely creates a vacancy which the Prime Minister may or may not like to fill.

 In Relation to the President

The Prime Minister enjoys the following powers in relation to the President:

1. He/she is the principal channel of communication between the President and the council of ministers.[4] It is the duty of the prime minister:

(a) to communicate to the President all decisions of the council of ministers relating to the administration of the affairs of the Union and proposals for legislation;

(b) to furnish such information relating to the administration of the affairs of the Union and proposals for legislation as the President may call for; and

(c) if the President so requires, to submit for the consideration of the council of ministers any matter on which a decision has been taken by a minister but which has not been considered by the council.

2. He/she advises the President with regard to the appointment of important officials like attorney general of India, Comptroller and Auditor General of India, chairman and members of the UPSC, election commissioners, chairman and members of the finance commission and so on.

 In Relation to Parliament

The Prime Minister is the leader of the Lower House. In this capacity, he/she enjoys the following powers:

1. He/she advises the President with regard to summoning and proroguing of the sessions of the Parliament.

2. He/she can recommend dissolution of the Lok Sabha to President at any time.

3. He/she announces government policies on the floor of the House.

 Other Powers & Functions

In addition to the above-mentioned three major roles, the Prime Minister has various other roles. These are:

1. He/she is the chairman of the NITI Aayog (which succeeded the planning commission), National Integration Council, Inter-State Council, National Water Resources Council and some other bodies.

2. He/she plays a significant role in shaping the foreign policy of the country.

3. He/she is the chief spokesman of the Union government.

4. He/she is the crisis manager-in-chief at the political level during emergencies.
