may give his/her assent to such a bill or withhold his/her assent.
With Regard to Money Bills	With Regard to Money Bills
Every money bill after it is passed by the Parliament, is presented to the President for his/her assent. He/she has two alternatives: 1. He/she may give his/her assent to the bill, the bill then becomes an act. 2. He/she may withhold his/her assent to the bill, the bill then ends and does not become an act. Thus, the President cannot return a money bill for the reconsideration of the Parliament. Normally, the President gives his/her assent to a money bill as it is introduced in the Parliament with his/her previous permission.	Every money bill, after it is passed by the state legislature (unicameral or bicameral), is presented to the governor for his/her assent. He/she has three alternatives: 1. He/she may give his/her assent to the bill, the bill then becomes an act. 2. He/she may withhold his/her assent to the bill, the bill then ends and does not become an act. 3. He/she may reserve the bill for the consideration of the President. Thus, the governor cannot return a money bill for the reconsideration of the state legislature. Normally, the governor gives his/her assent to a money bill as it is introduced in the state legislature with his/her previous permission.
When a Money Bill is reserved by the Governor for the consideration of the President, the President has two alternatives: (a) He/she may give his/her assent to the bill, the bill then becomes an Act. (b) He/she may withhold his/her assent to the bill, the bill then ends and does not become an act. Thus, the President cannot return a money bill for the reconsideration of the state legislature (as in the case of the Parliament).	When the governor reserves a money bill for the consideration of the President, he/she will not have any further role in the enactment of the bill. If the President gives his/her assent to the bill, it becomes an Act. This means that the assent of the governor is no longer required.
