2. He/she advises the governor with regard to the appointment of important officials like advocate general, chairman and members of the state public service commission, state election commissioner, and so on.

In Relation to State Legislature

The Chief Minister enjoys the following powers as the leader of the house:

1. He/she advises the governor with regard to the summoning and proroguing of the sessions of the state legislature.
2. He/she can recommend the dissolution of the legislative assembly to the governor at any time.
3. He/she announces the government policies on the floor of the house.

Other Powers and Functions

In addition, the Chief Minister also performs the following functions:

1. He/she is the chairman of the State Planning Board.
2. He/she acts as a vice-chairman of the concerned zonal council by rotation, holding office for a period of one year at a time.[4]
3. He/she is a member of the Inter-State Council and the Governing Council of NITI Aayog, both headed by the prime minister.
4. He/she is the chief spokesman of the state government.
5. He/she is the crisis manager-in-chief at the political level during emergencies.
6. As a leader of the state, he/she meets various sections of the people and receives memoranda from them regarding their problems, and so on.
7. He/she is the leader of the party in power.
8. He/she is the political head of the services.

Thus, he/she plays a very significant and highly crucial role in the state administration. However, the discretionary powers enjoyed by the governor reduces to some extent the power, authority, influence, prestige and role of the Chief Minister in the state administration.

RELATIONSHIP WITH THE GOVERNOR

The following provisions of the Constitution deal with the relationship between the governor and the Chief Minister:

1. Article 163: There shall be a council of ministers with the Chief Minister as the head to aid and advise the governor on the exercise of his/her functions, except in so far as he/she is required to exercise his/her functions or any of them in his/her discretion.
