The state government may make rules to provide for salaries and allowances and other terms and conditions of service of the President and members of the District Commission.

If there is a vacancy in the office of the President or member of a District Commission, then the state government may direct –

1. any other specified District Commission to exercise the jurisdiction in respect of that district also; or

2. the President or a member of any other specified District Commission to exercise the power and discharge the functions of the President or member of that District Commission also.

2. Jurisdiction

The District Commission shall have jurisdiction to entertain complaints where the value of the goods or services paid as consideration does not exceed rupees one crore. But the central government may prescribe such other value as it deems fit. Accordingly, in 2021, this limit was reduced to up to rupees fifty lakhs[5].

The District Commission shall ordinarily function in the district headquarters. It may also perform its functions at such other place in the district, as the state government may notify. This is done by the state government in consultation with the State Commission.

The District Commission shall have the power to review any of the order passed by it if there is an error apparent on the face of the record. This can be done by the Commission either of its own motion or on an application made by any of the parties within 30 days of such order.

The pecuniary jurisdiction of the District Commission, the State Commission and the National Commission is mentioned in Table 37.1:
