avail credit on its strength without any interest subsidy and buy whatever technology best fits its business plan.

State governments should also reshape their support for small businesses on these lines. They can provide support based on the extent to which the wages make up a value add weighted by the number of employees to encourage labour orientation.