MERGE CELLS

The Merge Cells function in Excel allows you to merge multiple cells into one cell, thereby combining their contents. This formatting feature can generate neat and structured tables or combine cells containing relevant information within a single table.

Under the Home tab, you will find the "Merge & Center" command in the Alignment group.

Select the cells you want to merge from the list of cells before using the "Merge Cells" command. After you click the Merge Cells command button, Excel will merge the selected cells into one cell.

In our Assignment 1 worksheet, the content of Cell A1 happens to be left aligned.
