When the data referenced by a formula changes, the result will be recalculated automatically. This allows you to update quickly and modify your data as necessary.