Implementation
Articles 38-42	❖ Right to be consulted by the states in taking measures to achieve the ends of the Declaration ❖ Right to financial and technical assistance from States for the enjoyment of the rights contained in the Declaration ❖ Right to just and fair procedures for the conflicts and disputes with States or other parties ❖ The responsibility on the UN system and other intergovernmental agencies to contribute towards realization of the provisions of the Declaration. ❖ The responsibility of the UN, its bodies, including to Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues, to promote respect for and full application of the provisions of the Declaration.
Nature of Guarantee
Articles 43-44	❖ The rights as enshrined are considered the minimum standards for the survival, dignity and well-being of the indigenous people. ❖ Equal guarantee of all rights to male and female indigenous individuals.

12.5 Contemporary Development Projects and Necessity of Right to Development

Trade, investment, finance, aid, debt, technology, innovation and global governance, all have consequences for the achievement of the right to development, as do the global challenges mentioned above. The right to development demands that these difficult and diverse issues be addressed comprehensively and coherently with the ultimate policy objective of securing freedom from fear and freedom from want for everyone. This ultimate objective of development is broadly reflected in diverse and evolving policy arenas.

For example, the Marrakesh Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organisation states that "relations in the field of trade and economic endeavour should be conducted with a view to raising standards of living, [and] ensuring full employment, while allowing for the optimal use of the world's resources in accordance with the objective of sustainable development". Similarly, the General Assembly in its annual resolutions on the right to development affirms human rights and improved human wellbeing as guiding considerations for multilateral trade negotiations and calls for mainstreaming the right to development and strengthening the global partnership for development within international trade institutions among other things. The right to development provides a framework for the consideration of extraterritorial obligations and the obligations of States in their collective capacities, including as members of international Organisations like the World Trade Organisation and multilateral development banks, and as actors in global trade, investment and finance.

12th_Political Science_Unit_12.indd 293 1/30/2020 4:18:49 PM