Part I

Development

As developers, the bulk of our time is typically spent developing applications in our local environment.

In this section, you'll learn, step by step, how to begin using Docker as part of your local development workflow.