left as shown in the first screenshot. If you see Project, click it and change it to Android.

Before we run the app, we need to confirm two settings. Depending on which version of Android Studio you're running, your project might be configured to use older versions of Android and/or Kotlin.

From the left pane, expand the chevron next to Gradle Scripts and double-click the second build.gradle.kts (the app one, not the project) to open it, as shown in the second screenshot.

