governments and finance ministers misunderstand its role. The RBI Governor, as the technocrat with responsibility for the nation's economic risk management, is not simply another bureaucrat or regulator, and efforts to belittle the position by bringing it into the bureaucratic hierarchy are misguided and do not serve the national interest. More clarity about the RBI's role, and a clearer assertion of its independence, would be in the nation's interest.