Gen. Bucher and his accomplice in Pakistan, Gen. Gracey had thwarted the Indian Army's ambitions of recapturing all of Jammu and Kashmir.[33] The entire war had been a mockery and had only enabled Pakistan to hold on to the Muzaffarabad-Poonch belt and the Gilgit Agency, purely as a result of British perfidy and treachery.[34]