Fig. 10.2. Interior of the Sudama cave with a hut-like structure carved into the rock

Fig 10.3. Lomasha Rishi cave architrave, with elephants moving towards a stupa

Fig. 10.4. Ashokan pillar at Lumbini, with the modern Maya-devi temple by its side

Fig. 10.5. Worshipping monks in front of Lumbini's Ashokan pillar

Fig. 10.6. Gotihawa pillar remnant, once known as Phuteshwar Mahadeva

Fig. 10.7. Nigali Sagar pillar segments

Fig. 10.8. The mud stupa of Vaishali is in the centre, surrounded by later brick constructions

Fig. 10.9. Relic box from the Vaishali stupa (now in the Patna Museum)

Fig. 10.10. Vaishali pillar in the vicinity of a brick stupa

Fig. 10.11. The circular temple at Bairat. The Ashokan inscription was found below the overhanging rock at the edge of the hill

Fig. 10.12. Chunar monolithic railing at Sarnath

Fig. 10.13. The broken Sarnath pillar with the edict inscribed on it

CHAPTER 11

Fig. 11.1. Ashokan pillar at Hissar fort (the lowest part) which was made part of a composite pillar

Fig. 11.2. A close-up of the Ashokan segment of the Hissar pillar with some Brahmi letters still intact

Fig. 11.3. Fatehabad segment of Ashokan pillar (the bottom part)

CHAPTER 12

Fig. 12.1. Tissarakshita, Queen of Ashoka (Abanindranath Tagore)

Fig. 12.2. Sanghamitra with the Bodhi tree (Nandlal Bose)