> Allah knows that nothing had been done by me or my dependents to give him ground for anger or reproach. What was heard of later on as perhaps explaining his going off in the way he did, was this; —When Qāsim Beg went with other begs, to give him honoring meeting as he came up from Ghaznī, the Mīrzā threw a falcon off at a quail. Just as the falcon, getting close, put out its pounce to seize the quail, the quail dropped to the ground. Hereupon shouts and cries, "Taken! is it taken?" Said Qāsim Beg, "Who loses the foe in his grip?" Their misunderstanding of this was their sole reason for going off, but they backed themselves on one or two other worse and weaker old cronish matters. After doing in Ghaznī what has been mentioned, they drew off through the Hazāras to the Moghūl clans.These clans at that time had left Nāṣir Mīrzā but had not joined the Aūzbeg, and were in Yāī, Astar-āb and the summer-pastures thereabouts.

Sulṭān Ḥusayn Mīrzā Asks for Help against Shaybāni Khān

With the resolve to repel Shaybāni completely, Sulṭān Husayn had summoned all his sons. He had also sent Sayyid Afẓal, son of Sayyid 'Alī Khwāb-bīn to call Babur, too. Babur was all in right faith to think it to be a perfect time to head for Khurāsān on the call of the ruler who sat on Tīmūr's throne. Babur considered it to be an important call:[†]

> (. . .) if there were some who went on foot it was for us to go if on our heads! if some took the bludgeon, we would take the stone!

Early that year, Shaybāni Khān had besieged Chīn Sūfī in Khwārizm for ten months. The brave people of Khwārizm had given a good fight to Shaybāni during the seize and they left no stones unturned to throw him out. They showered arrows furiously which pierced not only the shields, but also one or two cuirasses.

After having sustained the siege for around ten months, they had begun to lose the heart. The suffering was so long and acute that a few of them came forward to initiate the talk with Shaybāni. While those, whose heart had sunk, were in the process to let Shaybāni enter the fort, Chīn Ṣūfī got the news and ran to the spot fighting with the Aūzbegs. But an arrow stuck him from behind which had discharged from his own page and Allah's mercy fell on him. He died immediately and then his entire page collapsed as well.

Although Babur has mentioned in the Baburnama of Allah's mercy falling on Chīn Ṣūfī, who never for one moment ceased to stake his life for his chief[14] the page's fatal arrow finds no mention either in the Shaybānīnāma or Tārīkh-i-rashīdī. Khwārizm was entrusted to Kūpuk Bī by Shaybāni Khān and he marched back to Samarkand.
