the ground to get a glimpse of Babur marching in. The situation speaks of his heroic image in people's eyes.

Babur along with the other three reached Badī'u'z-zamān Mīrzā's audience tent. It was mutually agreed that Babur on entering would bend the knee for once and the Mīrzā would rise walking to the edge of the estrade. And then both would see each other.

Accordingly, Babur went inside and bent his knee. Then, he went forward swiftly but Mīrzā advanced slowly and languidly. Qāsim Beg, being Babur's well-wisher, intervened and gave a jerk to his girdle. Babur understood and slowed his pace of approach. They met at the pre-arranged spot.

The tent was decorated lavishly. Four divans were placed and one of the sides of the tent appeared like a gateway[18] on whose edge Mīrzā sat. This time, Badī'u'z-zamān Mīrzā and Muẓaffar Mīrzā sat together on a divan located on the edge of the gateway. Babur and Abū'l-muḥsin Mīrzā sat on a divan placed at the right-hand place of honour. On the third divan to the left of Badī'u'z-zamān Mīrzā sat Ibn-i-ḥusain Mīrzā and Qāsim Sulṭān Aūzbeg. The latter was a son-in-law of the late Husayn Mīrzā and father of Qāsim-i-ḥusain Sulṭān. To Babur's right and on the fourth divan, sat Jahāngīr Mīrzā and 'Abdu'r-razzāq Mīrzā. To the left of Qāsim Suktan and Ibn-i-ḥusain Mīrzā, sat Muḥammad Barandūq Beg, Ẕū'n-nūn Beg and Qāsim Beg at a lower seating than divan.

As the meeting began, viands were brought. Following it came the sherbet set with the food. The crockery and cutlery made of silver and gold were placed by the side.

While mentioning this incident, Babur speaks of Genghis Tura (rule):[*]

> Our forefathers through a long space of time, had respected the Genghis-tūrā (ordinance), doing nothing opposed to it, whether in assembly or Court, in sittings-down or risings-up. Though it has not Divine authority so that a man obeys it of necessity, still good rules of conduct must be obeyed by whom-soever they are left; just in the same way that, if a forefather have done ill, his ill must be changed for good.

After spending some time bantering over the lavish meal, Babur rode to the place where he was supposed to dismount and rest.

The next time Babur visited Badī'u'z-zamān Mīrzā, he observed the lessened respect shown by the latter. He conveyed his disgrace to Muḥammad Barandūq Beg and to Ẕū'n-nūn Beg:[†]

> (. . .) small though my age was, my place of honour was large; that I had seated myself twice on the throne of our forefathers in Samarkand by blow straight dealt; and that to be laggard in
