can incline the greys towards black or white. For example, while talking of Babur's raid into the region of Kafiristan, it becomes essential to elaborate on the past of the place. As another example, the clear distinction that Babur made while fighting the Muslims and non-Muslims becomes an essential pointer to dwell into what exactly was happening in terms of the cultural wars of that period.

I hope that this creation of mine will be well received by the people of Bharat and beyond. The next volume will get into details of the following:

1. Understanding roots of Islamic Colonization with Persia as a case study
2. Babur's campaign in Hindustan
3. The truth of Rana Sanga's correspondence with Babur
4. Humayun's life
5. Resistance to Babur and Humayun
6. Economic Model practised by Babur and Humayun
7. Religious policies of Babur and Humayun in India
