observed that Muqīm was holding onto his ground by fighting hard. Ignoring the fewness of men left out of thousands, putting their trust in Allah, they began beating the nagarets and moved ahead to face Muqīm with full force. Babur has composed bilingual verses about this battle:[*]

> (Turkī) For few or for many God is full strength;
> No man has might in His Court.
> (Arabic) How often, God willing it, a small force has vanquished a large one!

The empowering sound of nagarets and the powerful approach of Babur's men weakened Muqīm mentally. He forgot his plan of action and chose to flee. Babur has thanked Allah for this.

The victorious Babur with the remaining men moved towards Qandahār. He dismounted in Farrukh-zād Beg's Chārbāgh. Babur has said that no trace of that park was found at the time he was writing these passages.

Babur's Entry in Qandahār

Shāh Beg and Muqīm had already run away towards Shāl, Quetta and Zamīn-dāwar, respectively and didn't even attempt to enter Qandahār. No one was left to defend the fort. Of course, people like Aḥmad 'Alī Tarkhān along with other brethren of Qulī Beg Arghūn were present inside the fort, but Babur was sure that they would do nothing.

Despite all the flaws, they all had a very good relationship with Babur. He sat in a meeting with them to make important arrangements for the way forward. They rightly sought protection for the women and children of their brethren. Babur granted what they requested and on top also bestowed favours. Once the parley was done, they opened the Māshūr Gate of the town. But the populace without a leader was quite reactionary. They didn't let the other gates open for Babur. He couldn't tolerate it, went ahead with a few households and killed three of the civilians mercilessly to set an example for the rebels (a typical Tīmūrid trait).

Having set the populace in order, it was time for Babur to collect as much of spoils as he could. He began plundering from Muqīm's treasury which was in the outer fort. When Babur arrived, his aide 'Abdu'r-razzāq Mīrzā was just dismounting there. Babur handed over a few things to him and assigned Dost-i-Nāṣir Beg, Qul-i-bāyazīd and Muḥammad Bakhshī of the booty. Having done so Babur rushed to the citadel and appointed Khwāja Muḥammad 'Alī, Shāh Maḥmūd and ṭaghāī Shāh Bakhshī as in charge of Shāh Beg's treasury. He sent
