there came a time when Shaybāni's fate had smiled, and the citadel was almost lost. The situation had turned anxious and four people responsible for external security, Khwāja Muḥammad Amīn, Khwāja Dost Khāwand, Muḥammad 'Alī, a foot-soldier, and Shāmī jumped down the walls and ran away. The citadel was all set to surrender, and it was then that Shaybāni interrupted peace. Babur has mentioned why it happened the way it did:[*]

> It appears that before he went there, he had sent his ḥaram to Nīrah-tū,[47] and that in Nīrahtū some-one lifted up his head and got command in the fort; the Khān therefore made a sort of peace and retired from Qandahār.

Babur was back to Kābul by the Bād-i-pīch road abandoning the project of Hindustan yet again, which was in the middle of winter. Babur had ordered an inscription to be cut on a stone above Bād-i-pīch mentioning the date of transit and the crossing of the pass.[48] It was Ḥāfiẓ Mīrak who wrote the inscription. Babur has complained in the Baburnama that Ustād Shāh Muhammad did not perform the cutting of stone properly because of haste.

In the meantime, Babur had already bestowed Ghaznī on Nāṣir Mīrzā, Nangarhār tūmān Mandrāwar, Nūr valley, Kūnār and Nūrgal to 'Abdu'r-razzāq Mīrzā.

Padishah Babur Becomes Father

Till this very time, every ruler from Tīmūr Beg's legacy was addressed as Mīrzā. Babur brought a change. He instructed people to address him as Padishah.[49]

On 6 March of AD 1508, on the fourth day of the last month of Ẕū'l-qa'da, when the sun lay in Pisces, Babur became father to Humāyūn, his first living child, in the citadel of Kābul. The date of his birth was first found by the poet Maulānā Masnadī along with his name, Sulṭān Humāyūn Khān.[50] It is also recorded by a minor poet of Kābul found in Shāh-i-fīrūs-qadr (Shāh of victorious might).

Babur has mentioned that his first child received the name Humāyūn six days after his birth. Babur organized a feast of nativity at Chārbāgh. Babur showered gifts and a huge mass of white tankas over all his begs, small and great alike—it was never done before. Babur has written, 'It was a first-rate feast!'

Even as happiness was re-entering Babur's life, a new trouble was brewing as well. In May of AD 1508, a Moghūl rebellion had picked up.
