Appendix B

Events of Unchronicles Years (based on the Baburnama translation by Annette Susannah Beveridge)[*]

2 May of AD 1508 to 21 April of AD 1509

The mutiny, of which an account begins in Baburnama, was crushed vehemently. It was a victory of 500 loyalists over 3000 rebels. Beveridge finds one factor of success being the Bābur's defeat in single combat of five champions of his adversaries.[1] The turbulence was not there to stay for long. By the month of Sha'bān (November) Kābul was at peace. It was the time when twenty-year-old Sulṭān Sa'īd Khān Chaghatāī had arrived there. After having seen a series of setbacks he was seeking his cousin's protection. Sulṭān Sa'īd was defeated at the hands of his own brother Manṣūr at Almātū. He had almost defeated death. While being in Ferghana he was commanded by Shaybāni. He took a winter journey through Qarā-tīgīn to see Mīrzā Khān in Qilā'-i-ẓafar. But he was refused of an offer to replace feeble Mīrzā. And hence having lost all hopes he came to Kābul. He presented himself a destitute fugitive and enjoyed a freedom from care which was never known by him earlier.[†] The year of AD 1508 was incurable to Ḥaidar and Babur's family. Shaybānī murdered Muḥammad Ḥusain Mīrzā, other Dūghlāt Sulṭāns, Sulṭān Maḥmūd Khān and along with his six sons,.

21 April of AD 1509 to 11 April of AD 1510

The summers of AD 1509 began with hostilities between Shāh Ismā'īl Ṣafawī and Muḥammad Shaybānī Khān Aūzbeg. This was a piece of news which must have excited keen interest in Kābul.

The year would embark an occurrence of great importance in Turco-Mongol History. The personal acquaintance between Babur and his sympathetic biographer Ḥaidar Mīrzā Dūghlāt had just begun. Ḥaidar had escaped the protection of a kinsman; while he was just eleven. It is then that Shaybāni had attempted to kill him but he was saved by the servants of Mīrzā Khān (then located in Badakhshān). Mīrzā Khān sent Haidar to Bābur for the greater security of Kābul.[*]
