Kosonsoy in Namangan Region is different from the town of Koson of the Qashqadaryo Region of Uzbekistan and people often confuse the two to be same. Kosonsoy got its name after the river Koson which flows from high mountains of Kyrgyzstan to Turakurgan District of Namangan Region of Uzbekistan. The word ‘soy’in Tajik and means a ‘brook’, a small stream.

As per the recorded history so far, the first settlement happened here during the reign of Kushan Empire (first century AD). Few local traditions also tell us that the word ‘Koson’ perhaps came from the word Kushan itself. Kosonsoy enjoyed being an essential part of Kushan Empire along with ancient city Akhsikent near Namangan city. We find the remains of ancient Mug Castle of Kushanids in the northern part of the city. We are also given a different theory for the name of city. Few folklores say that ‘Koson’means ‘big town’or ‘strong castle’.

4 Nasir Mīrzā was third son of Umar Shaikh Mīrzā and half-brother of Babur. He was four years younger to Babur. His mother, Umid; a mistress of Umar Shaikh was an Andijāni.