how it came to be that when ‘the city was filled with festivities’ and ‘people were throwing colour on the passers-by as usual’, ‘suddenly we saw a small group of people accompanying the dead bodies to the cremation ground on Holi’ so that ‘quietly, their last rites were conducted’. And yet, lest we forget, ‘they were fearless patriots’ and ‘whatever they did was for this unfortunate country’ because ‘they could not endure injustice’ and ‘they could not see the country in this fallen state’. The result was that ‘the oppression inflicted upon the weak became intolerable for them’. In the end, ‘they were visionaries’.[34] And no doubt, Bhagat Singh would learn from them too.