did and did not do. It was the deliberate failure of the Mahatma to push his point home that prevented the lives of these young men from being saved. The Mahatma could have saved them in a way that only he knew given the power that he wielded at the time. He chose not to do so. That was his decision. It was a deliberate decision. And the reason for this was that he wished to have nothing to do ‘with the revolutionary business’.