Social and societal factors: Societal norms and values impose certain obstacle in meeting the individual needs which leads to frustration

Economic and financial factors: Unemployment and lack of money causes frustration in an individual.

Internal factors

Physical abnormality or defects: Too small or too big a stature, very heavy or thin body, an ugly face or dark complexion etc causes frustration.

Conflicting desires or aims: When a person has conflicting desires, he develops frustration. For example, a nurse wants to work in abroad and does not want to leave her family in home country causes frustration.

Individual's morality and high ideals: An individual's moral standards, code of ethics and high ideals may become a source of frustration to him.

Level of aspirations: One may aspire very high in spite of one's incapabilities or human limitations which may lead to frustration

Lack of persistence and sincerity in efforts: Frustration may result in one's own weakness in putting continuous and persistent efforts with courage, enthusiasm and will power.

Reaction to frustration

It can be classified as simple reactions and violent reactions

Simple reactions: It includes

- Increasing trials or improving efforts
- Compromising with what is available
- Withdrawal from the situation
- Submissiveness

Violent reactions: It includes aggression

3.9 Crisis intervention

Stressful situations are a part of everyday's life. Any stressful situation can precipitate a crisis. Crisis result in a disequilibrium from which many individuals require assistance to recover.

Meaning of crisis

A sudden event in one's life that disturbs homeostasis, during which usual coping mechanisms cannot resolve the problem (Lagerquist, 2001)

Characteristics of a crisis

Crisis occurs in all individuals at one time or another

- They are precipitated by specific identifiable events.
- Crises are personal by nature. What may be considered as crisis by one individual may not be so for another.
- Crisis are acute, not chronic and will be resolved in one way or another within a brief period.
- A crisis situation contains the potential harm for psychological growth or deterioration.

Causes of crises

Crisis may arise as a result of

- Stress or from the environment
- Life transitions
- Traumatic experience in life like death of loved one, accidents,
- Life threatening illnesses
- Stress out of promotions.
- Existing psychiatric problems

Crisis Intervention

Individuals experiencing crisis have an urgent need for assistance. In crisis intervention the therapist, or other intervener becomes a part of the individual's life situation. Because of the individual's emotional state, he or she is unable to solve a problem, so requires
