guidance and support from another to help mobilize the resources needed to resolve the crisis.

Goal of crisis intervention

- Resolution of immediate crisis
- Restoration of the individual to his pre-crisis level of functioning

Phases of crisis intervention

Phase 1: Assessment: It includes gathering of information regarding the precipitating stressor and resulting crisis that prompted individual to seek professional help. It includes assessment of physical and mental status, coping methods, support systems, individual's personal strengths and limitations.

Phase 2: Planning: In these phase, goals are established and appropriate activities are planned to meet the goals based on the individual's needs and strengths.

Phase 3: Intervention: This is the actual phase of implementation in which the person suffering from crisis is helped to overcome/ manage the crisis. It includes guidance services and utilizing the support systems in favour of the individual.

Phase 4: Evaluation of crisis resolution: It includes reassessment to determine if the stated objective was achieved. It includes reassessment for positive behavioural changes, adaptive coping strategies, growth and learning from the crisis and plan of action for dealing with stressors similar to the one that precipitated the crisis. At the end of this phase, decision is made regarding follow up therapy; if needed, the nurse provides referral information.

SUMMARY

- Psychology is the scientific study of the activities of the individual in relation to his environment.
- Maslow's hierarchy of needs is a theory in psychology proposed by Abraham Maslow in 1943.
- This theory is often portrayed in the shape of a pyramid with the largest, most fundamental needs at the bottom and the need for self actualization at the top.
- Individual difference is defined as the differences among individuals that distinguish or separate them from one another and make one as a unique individual in oneself. The differences in individual are due to heredity or environment or both.
- An attitude is a readiness to respond in such a way that behavior is given a certain direction.
