Environmental Causes

Environmental lead. Elevated body levels of lead affects the cognitive and behavioural development in children. Food dyes and additives (colouring preservatives), artificial flavours.

Clinical Features

- Sensitive to stimuli
- Easily upset by noise, light and environmental changes
- Short attention span, easily distractible,
- Failure to finish works
- Poor learning capacity and memory.

Types of ADHD

An Inattentive Type	A Hyperactive Impulsive Type	Combined Type
• Unable to pay attention and careless • Poor play activities • Listening problems • Cannot able to follow instruction • Avoiding works which needs mental efforts • Loses things like note books, pencil and homework frequently in school • Forgetting the daily activities • Unable to wait for their turn and respond	• Excessive running and climbing • Excessive talking • Cannot be seated in a place • Answering before hearing a full question • Cannot wait for their turn or in queue	This is the most common type and combination of both types.

Diagnosis

- A detailed history about pre natal and developmental history
- Teachers school report and parents report
- Child guidance clinic and complete psychiatric evaluation with psychologist
- Medical examination for neurological examination, hearing and vision.

Treatment

- Medications
- Therapies
- Behaviour modification therapy
- Family education
- Social skill training
- Attention training
- Visual training
- One to one talking

ADHD in Classroom

- Reduce seating distractions
- Supervision
- Give positive reinforcement
- Homework folder for parents

Diagnosed with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) at age 9, swimmer Michael Phelps, winner of 14 Olympic gold medals, overcame the challenges of his condition and hit his stride in the pool - thanks, in large part, to his mother's help.

TEACHER ACTIVITY

Make a visit to child guidance clinic and show the assessment of ADHD child.

Unit_10_Mental_health_Gen_Nur.indd 235 09-03-2020 15:07:12