number of clients requires (IV) therapy at home. Home IV therapy can provide additional fluids and electrolytes selected, nutritional supplements, on a route for medications. Insertion of IV cannula and initiation of the infusion will usually rest with the how health nurse.

Oral administration of medications: Oral administration of medications is the least expensive and the most convenient method for clients in the home physiologically oral route is safest one. Drugs are given sublingually. Usually are intended to be absorbed in to blood vessels of the underside of the tongue. Those given basically act locally on the mucous membrane or systematically in the saliva.

Traction: Traction is applied for the purposes of immobilization and the application of force to a body part usually an extremity. Traction is used to prevent movement of a body part to decrease muscular strain, to full fractured or displaced bone in to connect alignment or prevent skeletal deformities.

Wound care: A wound is a break in the integrity of body tissue. It may be internal or external.

Wounds may also be contaminated or infected. The goal of wound care is to prevent infection and hasten healing

Ventilation: The home care of the ventilation aspects are

a) Oxygen administration
b) Suctioning

Oxygen administration: Oxygen is commonly administered in the home who require supplemental oxygen for respiratory problem such as chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. The equipment should be maintained check nasal mucosa for irritation of using nasal prongs.

Suctioning: Surgical procedures, pain and chronic medical problems such as muscular dystrophy reduce the clients' ability to cough effectively. A laryngectomy on tracheostomy will facilitate suctioning the trachea but more potential for respiratory infection. Endo-tracheal suctioning may be requiring if the person cannot mobilize suctions and does not have artificial airway in place. The technique requires more skill and usually performed by home health nurse.

Counseling services in home health care

The counseling program provides intensive. Counseling services to families in the comfort of their own home. The families typically have children between the ages of 5 and 21 who are showing behavioral on emotional concerns. The services recognize each family individual strengths and work with partners to achieve goals. Commonly addressed Issues include

a) Anger management
b) Anxiety and depression
c) Alcohol and drug abuse
d) Child discipline techniques
e) Couples conflicts
f) Different behavior such as violence
g) Grief and loss
h) Parent / child conflicts

Counseling sessions may include whatever combination of members the family feels is important to achieve their goals. The length of the treatment depends on family's unique needs.

Rehabilitation services in home nursing

Community based rehabilitation is a strategy for enhancing the quality of life of the disabled people by improving the service delivery system by providing equitable opportunities and by promoting and protecting their human rights.

Definition: Community based rehabilitation is a strategy within community developmentfor the rehabilitation, equalization of opportunities, and social inclusion of all people with disabilities.

Practical 1-8.indd 327 09-03-2020 15:33:11