. Even after such proof of his villainy – and testament, perhaps, to the undeserved esteem a sayyid could command – Abul Ma'ali was given a prime burial spot near the tomb of Babur's sister and Akbar's loving aunt, Khanzada (and her would-be-king husband Mahdi Khwaja) no less. . The hunt was not the only sign of Akbar's concern at Hakim's attempt at Lahore, no matter how ineffective. Akbar spent time in the city and touring the region. He also ordered his nobility to travel across the province, undoing any damage that Kabuli soldiers may have done, and ensuring thereby that Hakim gained no popular support. See The Akbarnama of Abu'l Fazl, vol. 2.
. Badauni, Muntakhab-ut-Tawarikh, trans. W.H. Lowe. 'Khushkhabar Khan is bad news, for never was there / In the world such an ugly fellow as he / He died in the water, although they say / And from the water all things live.'
