Young Akbar standing with falcons. Dressed in fancy robes as pyjamas. Akbar is probably accompanied by his future regent Bayram Khan. A scene from before Humayun's death and the end of Akbar's (relatively) carefree youth. Attributed to Abd al-Samad. c. 1558–60

Victoria & Albert Museum, London

Chester Beatty Library, Dublin

Akbar and Mahom Anaga at her elder son's wedding. Akbar looks more grown than he was and Maham, for de facto regent after Bairam's fall, wields power. Attributed to Lal and Sanwla. c. 1590–95.