Deer, c. 1595. Abul Fazl once compared Akbar's 'exuberance' to that of a young hawk. This may be an early work by Ustad Mansur, who went on to become one of the luminaries of Jahangir's atelier.

Akbar helps capture a dervish, holding it by its hair. After Akbarnama, this circa 1590 work is one of Akbar's great love. Attributed to Tulsi and Narain, c. 1590–95.
