He explained how the best experts in the country were recommending 21 days to break the chain of the infection. He further advised that according to WHO's experts, it may take days for symptoms to manifest after being infected with the virus and that a person infected with this virus can transmit it to hundreds of people within the span of seven to 10 days. However, this asymptomatic person may unknowingly spread the virus to several others who come in contact with him.

The prime minister added another statistic to drive the point home,

> Another estimate given by the World Health Organization is very important. It took 67 days for the count of people infected with Corona to reach the 1st one lakh all over the world. After this, it took only 11 days for another one lakh people to get infected. It took the world 67 days for the number of Coronavirus infected persons to reach the first one lakh, but only 11 days to reach two lakh thereafter. What is even more alarming is that it took only 4 days for this number to go from 2 lakh to 3 lakh infections. You can imagine how rapidly Coronavirus spreads. And once it begins to spread, it is very difficult to contain.

He added that there would be no shortage of essential supplies at any point in time. He particularly urged people to come forth and help the poor. He also assured the people that the government was constantly working to better equip healthcare facilities and also making decisions as per advice from the WHO, our country's top medical and research organizations and experts.

He concluded his address by warning people against taking medication without consulting doctors and falling prey to rumours and fake news. As a parting note, as always he expressed confidence that India will emerge victorious in this challenge.[3]
