

Calligraphy on one of the walls of the Taj Mahal

Persian Influences

Mughal architecture can be considered a branch of the broader school of Persian aesthetics, and the grand entryway of the Taj is similar to mosques throughout the Persian world, including the Jama Masjid in Delhi and the stunning structures of the Naqsh-e Jahan Square in Iran's city of Isfahan.