As time passed, new laws were introduced to help African Americans with jobs and other necessities. There was a severe penalty for racially segregating or discriminating against the black community.