The Birth of a Nation

On January 1, 1901, Australia became a nation with six states and a single constitution. Today the country is home to people who have immigrated from over 200 different countries. There are over 300 languages spoken and many ethnicities to be found in different parts of the country.