USA and the Battle of Midway

The United States of America officially declared war on Japan the day after the attack. There was strategic planning done by military officials who retaliated several months later. In 1942, the Americans faced Japan in a succession of naval attacks and were victorious in the month of June.