The American Escalation

John F. Kennedy stated that he would only involve America as little as possible. His successor Lyndon B. Johnson had a similar policy. However, this changed when soldiers from North Vietnam attacked American naval vessels in 1964. In 1966, around 400,000 American soldiers were sent to Vietnam.