The End of Hostilities and the Collapse of Saigon

Le Duc Tho of North Vietnam and Henry Kissinger of USA met secretly in 1972 to negotiate a treaty. At the same time, Nixon increased the bombing of North Vietnam so that Le Duc Tho was forced to settle an agreement. In January 1973, they agreed on a ceasefire and the remaining American troops were withdrawn from Vietnam in March 1973.

Although America carried on aiding South Vietnam by providing capital, the funds eventually came to an end. At the same time, President Nixon was forced to resign from office due to the Watergate Scandal. In 1975, North Vietnamese forces escalated their attacks and eventually took control of Saigon, which is known as Ho Chi Minh City today. Vietnam was reunified as a communist country and declared itself to be Socialist Republic of Vietnam. The Vietnam War was finally over.
