His eldest son was known to be headstrong and had his own advisors he liked to speak with. Li Siu was a corrupt advisor who hid the emperor's death from everyone until he was able to change the name of the emperor's heir from his eldest son to his youngest son Hu Hai. Lu Siu believed he could control the youngest son and influence his rule. His plot worked and Hu Hai became the Second Emperor. However, after the death of the First Emperor, the dynasty quickly fell into ruin. The second emperor turned out to be corrupt and the people began to revolt against him. It was Liu Bang who overthrew the corrupted Qin dynasty and established the Han Dynasty (206 BC – 220 AD) several years later.
