it is specified in the markup is the basis of the initial adjustment to the target and text. By using `connect`, we could start the controller in the hidden state by changing the initial value of `data-favorite-toggle-active-value` to `false` in the markup.

And now we have a working button that changes both the show/hide behavior and the text of the button.